

HEADACHE

is only a symptom—not a disease. So are Backache, Nervousness, Dizziness and the Blues. They all come from an unhealthy state of the menstrual organs. If you suffer from any of these symptoms—if you feel tired and languid in the morning and wish you could lie in bed another hour or two—if there is a bad taste in the mouth, and no appetite—if there is pain in the side, back or abdomen—BRADFIELD'S FEMALE REGULATOR will bring about a sure cure. The doctor may call your trouble some high-sounding Latin name, but never mind the name. The trouble is in the menstrual organs, and Bradfield's Female Regulator will restore you to health and regulate the menses like clockwork.

Sold by druggists for $1 a bottle. A free illustrated book will be sent to any woman if request be mailed to THE BRADFIELD REGULATOR CO. ATLANTA, GA.

A Hungry Skeleton

I was out on a hunt in the Adirondacks in company with Rob Murden of the treasury department.

"Gentlemen," said Bill, the guide, as he lighted his pipe after the evening meal. "I reckon I'll have to give you a yarn. Last year I went down to Martin's with a party that was just going out, and after they'd paid me off I went in to see if old Martin had any business for me. He was tickled to death when he saw me.

"Bill, I've got a big job for you."

"What kind of a job?"

"Why, to take a sick man up the lake."

"I don't like that kind of a job," says I. "Them chaps are mighty contrary, and, like enough, he'd die up there just to spite me."

"You've got to take chances on that, old chap; and if you take him up there a month he'll give you $500."

"What is he?"

"Martin took me into a room in the front of the house, and there sat a man that looked as much like a living skeleton as any I ever see; but when I came to look at the fellow I see he had more life than a good many who didn't show so much bone, and that very day I kerried him down to the boat, laid him on a bed of balsam boughs up for'ard, and away we went."

"He kept up wonderful for a sick man. I don't think I ever see a man who was so far gone that showed so much vitality. I kept the paddle going pretty brisk until 'bout 4 o'clock, and then I put into a point, left him lying on the bank and built a 'lean' for him to sleep under. After that I caught six or eight good trout from a spring brook that run into the lake, built a fire, made some coffee and was going to eat my supper, calculating to give him a little something when he was rested. I was just going to pitch in when he called me."

"William," says he.

"I ain't none of your Williams. Onadager Bill, I am, and nothing but it."

"Very well, Bill, I feel as if I could eat a little something."

"I asked his pardon, and said I calculated that a man as sick as he was wouldn't keef for grub."

"I don't want much, Bill. A few of those trout, a cup of coffee and any other little trifles you can think of will be good enough for me."

"I got up to wunst and set to work to catch some trout for myself, while I set the rest before him on a strip of birch bark. I caught about as many trout as I thought I could get outside of comfortable and put 'em in the pan, watching them and calculating what a good time I'd have when that living skeleton called me ag'in."

"Another cup of coffee, Bill, if you please."

"I got up to give him the coffee, and may I never kill another buck if he hadn't stripped them eight trout as clean as a whistle!"

"I'd like a few more trout," he says. "I ain't got much appetite, a poor sick man like me. I'd give anything if I was only healthy."

"I went back and cooked some more trout, but before I got 'em ready he was singing out for a few of those nice trout."

"I took him a dozen more."

"Do you know, Bill," he says, looking up in my face in his smooth, innocent way, "that it almost gives me an appetite to eat these trout?"

"Says I, 'Mr. Staples, ain't you afraid you'll eat too much?'"

"Eat too much! My friend, have I eaten anything to speak of?"

"Eaten anything! Great Caesar, Mr. Staples, do you pretend that you can eat any more when you are well?"

"Of course I can," he says, just as mad as he could be. "When I am well, I have just as good an appetite as any one."

"Then I tell you that you've made a great mistake, Mr. Staples. It's elephants you want, and you ought to have gone to Africa, and then, like enough, I could have killed a critter big enough to give you a square meal." Then I went down to the boat and brought up a piece of pork that weighed about 15 pounds.

"What are you going to do with that pork?" he says.

"I'm going to cook it for your supper. I judge you'll need it."

"Thank you, Bill. I believe I will take a piece of that pork, and I can kinder peek at it while you catch some more trout."

"I'll see you cussed afore I'll catch another trout. If I've got to tote you up and down the lake, I ain't going to kerry 25 pounds extra every time you get a meal. And, see here! You can just take your money back and find another guide, for cuss my old head if I can hunt and fish for a man that needs a regiment of cooks and an armory of guides to provide his grub."

"I don't think I ever heered a man laugh as he did, and then a change came over him. He got up, gave himself a shake, and he was a changed man. His hollow cheeks came out, his eyes were not sunk so deep and he was rather a good looking man, with a jolly look in his eye. Then old Martin came out of the woods and fell down, holding his sides and laughing like he was to die. I see it was a gag then."

"The man was a New York actor, and it was just a put up job between him and Martin. I was so mad at first I thought I'd quit, but they laughed me out of it. And this I will say: A better companion, a surer shot or a lighter hand on a ten ounce rod I don't wish to see. I'd just come back with him when you engaged me, and I'm to paddle for him every year while we stay above the sod. But I'll never forget that time while I live. Blanket time, gentlemen: let's go to roost."—Exchange.

Surpriser.

When Otis Skinner, the actor, played an engagement in Memphis, his matinee performance of "The Liars" was graced by the patronage of the season's most attractive debutantes. After the curtain went down, the manager escorted the debutantes back of the stage, where they met and conversed with the actor.

"We enjoyed everything very much," said one of them; "but, do you know, Mr. Skinner, we could scarcely hear a word you said."

"Now, that's certainly strange," replied the actor. "I could hear everything you ladies said."—Memphis Scimitar.

Couldn't G-Ind Her Teeth in Sleep.

An eminent professor of psychology at Harvard was deeply interested in the case of an epileptic woman. Talking with her husband, he sought out premonitions and symptoms. And he asked this question, "Did you ever notice that your wife ground her teeth at night?"

To which the bereaved husband replied, "She never slept in them."—Boston Journal.

Question Answered

Yes August Flower still has the largest sale of any medicine in the civilized world. Your mothers, and grandmothers, never thought of using anything else for indigestion or biliousness. Doctors were scarce, and they seldom heard of Appendicitis, Nervous Prostration or Heart failure, etc. They used August Flower to clean out the system and stop fermentation of undigested food, regulate the action of the liver, stimulate the nervous and organic action of the system, and that is all they took when feeling dull and had with headaches and other aches. You only need a few doses of Green's August Flower, in liquid form, to make you satisfied there is nothing serious the matter with you. Sold by dealers in all civilized countries. oct-27-1y

Skin Diseases

When the excretory organs fail to carry off the waste material from the system, there is an abnormal accumulation of effete matter which poisons and clogs the blood, and it becomes sour and acid. This poison is carried through the general circulation to all parts of the body, and upon reaching the skin surface there is a redness and eruption, and by certain peculiarities we recognize Eczema, Tetters, Acne, Salt Rheum, Psoriasis, Erysipelas and many other skin troubles, more or less severe. While the skin is the seat of irritation, the real disease is in the blood. Medicated lotions and powders may allay the itching and burning, but never cure, no matter how long and faithfully continued, and the condition is often aggravated and skin permanently injured by their use.

The disease is more than skin deep; the entire circulation is poisoned.

The many preparations of arsenic, mercury, potash, etc., not only do not cure skin diseases, but soon ruin the digestion and break down the constitution.

S. S. S., nature's own remedy, made of roots, herbs and barks, of great purifying and tonic properties, quickly and effectively cures blood and skin troubles, because it goes direct to the root of the disease and stimulates and restores normal, healthy action to the different organs, cleanses and enriches the blood, and thus relieves the system of all poisonous secretions. S. S. S. cures permanently because it leaves none of the original poison to reappear in the blood and cause a fresh attack.

Healthy blood is necessary to preserve that clear, smooth skin and beautiful complexion so much desired by all. S. S. S. can be relied upon with certainty to keep the blood in perfect order. It has been curing blood and skin diseases for half a century; no other medicine can show such a record.

S. S. S. contains no poisonous minerals—is purely vegetable and harmless.

Our medical department is in charge of physicians of large experience in treating blood and skin diseases, who will take pleasure in aiding by their advice and direction all who desire it. Write fully and freely about your case; your letters are held in strictest confidence. We make no charge whatever for this service. Our book on Blood and Skin Diseases will be sent free upon application.
